The facts tending to establish the foregoing grounds for issuance of a Search Warrant are as follows:

Affiant, Mitchel W Bengston, is a full time salaried law enforcement officer who has been employed by the New Mexico State Police for a period of approximately sixteen years. Affiant has received specialized training in criminal investigations through the New Mexico Law Enforcement Academy, the New Mexico State Police Academy, the Institute of Police Technology and Management, Police Agency Training Counsel, Force Science, Airborne Law Enforcement Association, and the Association of Certified Fraud Examiners. Affiant has received training in the investigation of crimes including but not limited to false identity and sovereign citizen investigations. Affiant has received both classroom and on the job training concerning the investigation of the above offense(s). Affiant has conducted numerous criminal investigations that led to the arrest and conviction of persons in violation of New Mexico State Statutes. Affiant (I) shall herein after be referred to in the first person.

On February 2, 2017, I was assigned by Sergeant Smith, New Mexico State Police Criminal Investigations Section/Albuquerque, to assist Agent Jeremy Vaughan, New Mexico State Police Criminal Investigations Section/Albuquerque, in the investigation of four individuals who had entered the Valencia County Detention Center located in the Los Lunas area of Valencia County New Mexico.

I was provided a telephonic briefing of information by both Agent Vaughan and Deportation Officer Paul Bryant, Immigration and Customs Enforcement. The following is a synopsis of this information.

On February 2, 2017, the Valencia County Detention Center was contacted by telephone and advised that "Marshal's" were coming to that facility later in the day to pick up an inmate currently being housed there. Several documents were faxed to the detention center with this information.

Detention Center personnel contacted the United States Marshals Service and gave them this information. A plan was developed and implemented by placing Law Enforcement teams inside and outside of the facility as well as inside of the security surveillance booth.

Once teams were in place, they observed a black Ford Expedition sport utility vehicle bearing Texas registration plate DV6JBR pull into the parking area of the detention center. There appeared to be two male subjects and two female subjects inside of the vehicle. The two males exited the vehicle and entered the front office of the detention center. These two males were wearing what appeared to be firearms openly on their hip. The males made contact with a corrections officer and then went back to the black Ford passenger vehicle. The vehicle containing the four subjects then drove to the south sally port gate which was then opened and the vehicle drove in. A felony type stop was conducted on the occupants and they were removed one by one and taken into custody by Law Enforcement. The vehicle doors were opened to clear the vehicle and ensure no other subjects were located inside. No persons were located. What appeared to be luggage and bedrolls were observed inside. The vehicle was then secured in place pending the issuance of this search warrant.

During interviews of the subjects, they admitted to having three or more knives inside of the vehicle in addition to the two firearms observed by Law Enforcement. The subjects also admitted to possessing three cellular phones which were used to locate and map directions to the facility, call unknown individuals for information on how to get the inmate out of the facility, read and send documents to the facility in order to take the inmate out of the facility. They also sent and received text messages regarding the inmate. During the arrest of the passengers of the vehicle, the front seat passenger was recording this using a cellular phone.

Affiant is aware through training and experience that people involved in the commission of crime(s) often attempt to conceal, tamper with and/or dispose of evidence, including but not limited to the herein-described item(s), to be seized.

Affiant is aware through training and experience that before, during and/or after the commission crime(s) there is often transfer of evidence between suspect(s), victim(s), witness(es) and/or their environment. This evidence may not be visible to the naked eye. The evidence, if it exists, may assist in determining the identity of any person who may have been present at the time of the incident.

Therefore, in order to ensure that a complete and thorough investigation is conducted, investigators may be required to examine the entire, above-mentioned vehicle including, but not limited to, the examination of contents and natural voids. It may be necessary for investigators to remove and/or damage entire portions of the vehicle including but not limited to doors, windows, carpets, upholstery, clothing, mechanical equipment and/or other items.

Affiant knows a cellular telephone or mobile telephone is a handheld wireless device used primarily for voice communications through radio signals. These telephones send signals through networks of transmitter / receivers called "cells," enabling communication with other cellular telephones or traditional "land line" telephones. A cellular telephone usually includes a "call Log", which records the telephone number, date, and time of calls made to and from the phone.

In addition to enabling voice communications, cellular telephones now offer a broad range of capabilities. These capabilities include, but are not limited to: storing names and phone numbers in electronic "address books"; sending, receiving, and storing text messages and email; taking, sending, receiving and storing still photographs and moving video; storing and playing back audio files; storing dates, appointment, and other information on personal calendars; and accessing and downloading information from the Internet. Cellular telephones may also include global positioning system (GPS) technology for determining the location of the device.

Based on my knowledge, training, and experience, I know that in order to completely and accurately retrieve data maintained in (device's) hardware or software, to ensure accuracy and completeness of such data, and to prevent the loss of the data either from accidental or intentional destruction, it is often necessary that the (device), related instructions in the form of manuals and notes, as well as the software utilized to operate such a device, be seized and subsequently processed by a qualified specialist in an alternate setting.

Analyzing electronic handheld devices for criminal evidence is a highly technical process requiring expert skill and a properly controlled environment. Such devices utilize a vast array of different operation systems, software, and set-ups. The variety of hardware and software available requires even experts to specialize in some systems and applications. Thus it is difficult to know prior to the search which expert possesses sufficient specialized skill to best analyze the system and its data. No matter which system is used, however, data analysis protocols are exacting scientific procedures, designed to protect the integrity of the evidence and to recover even "hidden", erased, compressed, password-protected or encrypted files. Since electronic evidence is extremely vulnerable to tampering or destruction (both from external sources or from destructive code imbedded in the system as a "booby trap", a controlled environment is essential to its complete and accurate analysis. Furthermore, there are often no software tools designed for forensic searches of particular handheld devices. Thus, searching for and retrieving data from a (device) can be even more complicated than searching a computer, even if the device has a much smaller memory capacity than a computer. For the forgoing reasons, the (device) will be removed from the searched premises if the agent deems it necessary in order to conduct an efficient, complete, secure, and accurate search of the device.

Searching (the device) for the evidence described above may require a range of data analysis techniques. In some cases, it is possible for agents to conduct carefully targeted searches that can locate evidence without requiring a time-consuming manual search through unrelated materials that may be commingled with criminal evidence. For example, agents may be able to execute a "keyword" search that searches through the files stored in a computer for special words that are likely to appear only in the materials covered by that warrant. Similarly, agents may be able to locate the material covered in the warrant by looking for particular directory or file names. In other cases, however, such techniques may not yield the evidence described in the warrant. Criminals can mislabel or hide files and directories; encode communications to avoid using key words; attempt to delete files to evade detection; or take other steps designed to frustrate law enforcement searches for information. These steps may require agents to conduct more extensive searches, such as scanning areas of the device's memory not allocated to listed files, or opening every file and scanning its contents briefly to determine whether it falls within the scope of the warrant. In light of these difficulties, your affiant requests permission to use whatever data analysis techniques appear necessary to locate and retrieve the evidence described above.

Affiant is aware through training and experience that people who have apparent knowledge of the incident often make telephone calls to the scene and/or attempt to communicate with each other during the time that law enforcement personnel are executing the search warrant. These people often utilize a variety of communications equipment, including, but not limited to pagers, smart phones, and/or cellular telephones to communicate before, during and after the incident. Answering incoming telephone calls while at the scene and speaking with these people often provides law enforcement with information that is material and relevant to this investigation. It is often necessary to answer communications devices including, but not limited to cellular telephones after seizing the devices, pursuant to the warrant.

Affiant is aware through training and experience that people who have apparent knowledge of the commission of crime(s) often like to photograph, and/or take videos during the commission of a crime, using cellular device(s) and/or any other digital hardware.

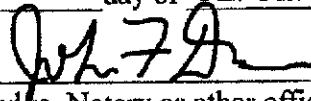

Documentation of the herein-described vehicle and/or items is important to the investigation. It is important to document the condition and/or location of items found at the scene and/or their context within the scene.

Affiant is also aware that suspect(s), victim(s) and/or witness(es) may document information relating to the crime(s) on paper, on computers and/or on other forms of media.
